

Closing Out December with ScienTech Community Insights!

Dear ScienTech Community,

As December unfolds and the year draws to a close, we are pleased to share the most significant highlights from our collective journey.

This past month has been filled with insightful content and innovative activities. As the program concludes in January, we invite you to explore the curated resources we have prepared to keep you informed, inspired, and ready for future opportunities. Let us close the year with a sense of achievement and look forward to what the future holds.

Thank you for being a vital part of this journey, and stay tuned for our final meeting on January 28th 🚀

First, we would like to recommend an incredibly interesting podcast:

Dr. Adi Goldenzweig and her partner, Dr. Ravit Netzer, conducted groundbreaking research on protein folding. They transformed their academic expertise into a new company in the field, Scala Biodesign. In this captivating episode, Adi discusses her academic career, overcoming frustrations in the lab, founding a company, and a variety of other fascinating topics. The conversation delves not only into advanced biology but also into life itself, making it a must-listen for entrepreneurs and scientists alike.
